Music Management

Master of Arts

www.donau-uni.ac.at/musicmanagement

Music is art, but also a cultural and economic resource. Music professionals, whether managers, producers, presenters, music media professionals, or agents need to stay up to date with technological innovations, and evolving music business paradigms to successfully place themselves in this creative industry.

The part-time advanced master's program in Music Management helps build a foundation for motivated students to qualify for rapidly changing national and international music markets by combining music and media theory and practice with economics, management, and legal disciplines.

International academic lecturers and music business professionals help prepare students for dynamic shifts in creative, operational, and commercial aspects pertaining to the global music market.

Music Management, MA
